

WILFRID KNAPP

A History of War and Peace 1939-1965

The author provides the first comprehensive narrative of world politics since 1939, and in doing so demonstrates by argument the nature of power and its balance, the relevance of national politics to international relations, and the relation of ideas to force and change in world history. 63s

DAVID VITAL

The Inequality of States

A Study of the Small Power in International Relations

This is the first systematic attempt to consider the problems that face the small state in its external relations. These are discussed with particular reference to those whose position is most precarious—the neutral and unaligned states which either avoid the close protection of greater powers or are unable to obtain it. 30s

The Impact of the Russian Revolution 1917-67

The Influence of Bolshevism on the World outside Russia

This book, which opens with a wide-ranging survey by Arnold Toynbee, consists of a study of the Labour Movement by Neil McInnes, an examination of Nationalism and Imperialism by Hugh Seton-Watson, an investigation of the phenomenon of 'Power without Influence' by Peter Wiles, and a final essay by Richard Lowenthal on 'The Model of the Totalitarian State'. 45s
